WASHINGTON, January 12.—The opinion of the attorney-general favoring the transfer of the franchises and land grant of the Backbone railroad to the New Orleans Pacific was found buried in a report of Secretary Teller's which was made yesterday. For some reason that is not clear the public has been denied access to this opinion, although a copy of it was given to Senator Kellog last June, and one or two members of the judiciary committee of the house had been supplied confidentially with configuration. dentially with copies. The opinion is worthy of the pen of a first-class railroad lawyer. The attorney-general says that five questions were submitted him: First, was the grant to the New Orleans, Baton Rouge and Vicksburg railroad company given the so-called Backburg company. Backbone company a grant in præsenti? Second had the New Orleans, Baton Rouge and Vicksburg or Backbone road at the date of its alleged transfer of land to the New Orleans Pacific such an interest in the lands as were assignable? Third, is the New Orleans Pacific railroad company such a suc-

answers in the affirmative. He reasons that the act granting the lands passed tolthe Backbone road present interest in the land, and the grant, he says, is in the nature of a float. The definite location of the land depends upon the establishment of the line of the road. There is a condition, the attorney-general says, that the road shall be completed in five years, but this is a condition subsequent, and therefore there exists only the right of the government to enforce a forfeit of the land. Until this is done the company retains its interests in the company retains its interests in the grant. As the government has never declared the grant forfeited, the attornever declared the grant torretted, the action nev general argues that the Backbone road owned the interest in the grant and he declares that he perceives no legal obstacle arising out of the grant itself to the transfer of such interest by the grantee to another company, "and should the other company to the require. construct their road agreeably to the require-ments of the grant and thus accomplish the end congress had in view I submit that it end congress had in view I submit that it would be clearly entitled to the benefit hereof; and, further, my conclusion is that the consent of congress to the assignment is not necessary in order to entitle the assignee to the benefit of the land grant."

That it is the transfer of the land grant." That is, to fit the opinion to the case, the Backbone rallroad, a defunct corporation, that never turned a peck of dirt, or so far as known had not a bona fide subscription, can turn over to another company a grant of a million and a half of the choicest land in Louisiness. ana and do so six years after the condion of the first grant has lapsed and when the other company has built a road entirely different from the one contemplated by the defunct company. The opinion bolsters up as clean a case of legal robbery of the public land, the legality to be consummated by undue influences, as ever occurred.

The chances are much better for the bill since the very favorable impression made by Mr. Dart, though at this stage of the session any new bill has a terrible gauntlet to run. THE CONFESSION.

The halls of the hotel were thescene of The halls of the hotel were thescene of the wildest confusion. Men, women, and children rushed up and down the halls in the dense, suffocating smoke, avoiding the blinding flames and roaring blaze, and in their frantic efforts rushing by the stairways and windows leading to the fire escapes, stumbling ever bodies lying unconscious on the carpeted walks, only to join soon the many prostrated forms whom a kind fate had touched with the dark wing of the messenger of death—unconsciousness. Men who in the of death—unconsciousness. Men who in the heartless and unfeeling wrung their hands in despair, running about utterly be-wildered, exclaiming "My God! My God! My God! This is horrible!" Then a black object would appear on the outside of a window, driven out by the smoke and flame, a piercing scream would rend the morning air, and a heavy thud would announce that a human being had dropped from the d zzy height to a death on the pavement below. At one time there were six persons hanging from one window sill at the fifth story, at the same time crying in agony for belp that could not be rendered them. One after another loosed their grip and met their fate.

HE DRSERVED SUCCESS.

One man, by letting himself down at arms length from a fifth-story window, put his foot through a window below, and reached the fourth floor in safety. This operation was repeated until the third floor was reached, each point gained in the progress of his descent being greeted with encouraging cheers from the bystanders. As he was putting his feet through the top of the second-story window his hands slipped from the sill above, and with a wild shriek of desthe sill above, and with a wild shrick of des pair he fell backward, turning over several times, and striking the pavement on his head. He was mangled beyound recognition. Another man jumped from a fifth-story window, struck the telegraph wires on Michigan street, bounded up, and came down a mangled mass of flesh and bones. A number of gled mass of flesh and bones. A number of people dropped out of different stories on the jumping-canvass, but in the majority of cases they were killed or sustained injuries from which there is little hope of recovery. DEEDS OF HEROISM.

While these scenes were enacted on the Broadway and Michigan sides of the building great horrors were being enacted in the alley in the rear. The servants' rooms were in the northwest quarter of the building, remote from the place in which the fire was raging; but all means of escape by the stairways were cut off by the flames. As the terrible roaring and crackling of the flames struck upon cut off by the hands and cracking of the flames struck upon their ears they became terror-stricken, and eight of them followed each other in leaping from the dizzy height to the ground in the alley. The jumping canvas was on hand, but it was powerless in the conflict with death, and was clotted over with the victims' blood. At this juncture the cool headed hero of the day, appeared upon the top of a building directly peared upon the top of a building directly peared upon the top of a building directly opposite the servants' quarters, with a ladder in his hand. For a moment the long, unwieldy thing was poised in mid-air, and then descended with a crash through a window of the hotel. It formed a bridge across the alley, and before it became hardly in its po-sition the brave man had crossed over into the botel; and then amid the cheers of the multitude below, the man dragged the helpess creatures across the slender bridge, unti fess creatures across the stender bridge, until fully a dozen were rescued. They were all of them in their night-clothes, and many wore badly frozen before they could be taken to shelter. A woman, in a faint, usable to help herself in any particular, was dragged across the ladder At one time the whole of her body was hang-ing clear of the ladder, while the brave man held her by one of her ankles. The crowd below held their breath in suspense, expect-ing every moment to see the ladder turn or break beneath the terrible strain. The man, however, was equal to the emergency, and, by a herculean effort, pulled her upon the slender bridge, and finally placed her out of danger. The crowd, which had endured the most painful suspense for fully ten minutes, burst forth with round after round of ap-plause. The name of the hero is Herman F. Strauss, truckman of truck No. 1.

THE CONFESSION.

THE BEIDE OF A DAY.

John Gilbert, the comedian of the Minning Palmer dompany, jumped from the third story window with his wife in his arms.

About the same time Mr. Allan Johnson but weight of both men crushed the wife to death. The actor's head was cut and bruised in a frightful manner, and he was picked up in an unconscious state and conveyed to the Plankinton house. There was a strange incident when Mrs. Gilbert's body reached the morgue. An Irishman identified the corpose as that of his daughter, the fine and twench the ornaments from her are an one proceeded to strip from the fine and twench the ornaments from her are an one proceeded to strip from the fine and twench the ornaments from her are an one proceeded to strip from the fine and twench the ornaments from her are an one proceeded to strip from the fine and twench the ornaments from her are an one proceeded to strip from the fine and company. She was greatly rejoic-ed at the idea of going to Europe with the company, and told what she would do while Thumb and his wife were rescued from the hotel by Police Officer O'Brien, who took one of the little people under each arm and carried them down stairs and across the street to the American Express office. They were in their night clothes, and Mrs. Thumb suffered much from the cold atmosphere. The genush from the cold atmosphere. The genmuch from the cold atmosphere. The general, immediately upon being planted in the erai, immediately upon being planted in the express office, began mourning the loss of valuable diamonds and other jewelry belonging to himself and his wife. The latter heard him through, and replied reprovingly: "What if we had lost everything? Just look at those people there," pointing to the man-gled forms of twenty dead and dying men and women lying upon the floor. The little woman then bravely began relieving the suf-ferings of those around her by supplying them with water and a display of other acts of sym-pathetic kindness. pathetic kindness. The DEATH TRAP.

The feeling here is intense, and the men whose greed and recklessness in part occasioned the great calamity receive unlimited censure. Said one gentleman in the Plank-inton house to night: "I've had an insurance office in that building for years, and know it office in that building for years, and know it well. The revenue from rents amounted to $10,000 a year, and yet the management would not employ night watchmen. There was one man who acted the part of night porter and watchman, but he had to attend to two trains and could not which the building. There should have been a watchman on each floor. Again there were only two fire-escapes. Think of that for a building 180 by 100 feet in dimensions! Three years ago repeated attempts at incendiarism were made in the hotel. Six times in succession a person who was never times in succession a person who was never prosecuted for his crime set the place on fire." The reporter tried to find out what architect built the death-trap. Dan Newhall commenced it, but became bankrupt. John Rugge then brought it to completion. Mr. Antisdel, the economics del gentleman who ran the the economical old gentleman who ran the concern, was taken to the Plankinton house night he was removed to a private house. The true facts were kept from him, and he repeatedly begged to know if more than ten lives had been lost. Mr. C. D. Nash, the owner of the building itself, was described in a local paper as having been overcome with grief when he heard of the indiscriminate slaughter. The incident was related in a hotel last night, and Charles Courill said: "I'll give $5 apiece for every tear he shed. IN THE DEBRIS Shortly before ten o'clock to-day, the body of a woman was found by the workmen excavating the ruins. It was burned beyond recognition. From the locality of the body it is thought that the remains are those of Miss Libbie Chellis. The remains were fairly miss Libbie Chellis. The remains were tairly embedded in the brick. Much indignation is manifest at the bungling work that is carried on and the insufficient force employed. The action of the council caused such general condemnation and threatening that another meeting is called to arrange for the employment of a large force of laborers, and an electric appliance for work at night. W. A. Hall, of Laport, Indiana, a partner of Mr. Weber, in the milling business, died this morning at Mr. Bartlett's office. He jumped from the fifth story window, breaking both legs, the bones protruding through the flesh. His whereabouts only became known late last night. Five bodies were buried this morning, D. G. Powers, Mary Conroy, Bessie Brown and Annie Lanehan from St. John's cathedral, and Maggie Sullivan from St. Paul's. embedded in the brick. Much indignation and Annie Lanehan from St. John's cathedral, and Maggie Sullivan from St. Paul's. The attendance of the people at the impressive funeral services was very large. Shortly after noon two more bodies burned beyond the possibility of indentification and part of a human trunk were found. It is now settled, beyond peradventure, that the loss of life will not fall below seventy.

She was terribly burned about the neck, the lower portion of the face, her arms, and limbs between her feet and knees. Her injuries, though severe, are not fatal.

On the body of Mr. Van Loon was found $25,000 in bonds.

D. G. Power, a well known inventor and real estate man, who came to Milwaukee in 1851 and had for some years been a resident of the Newhall house, is among the deed. He was in many respects a most remarkable man.

Judson J. Hough, of Peoria, Ill., who had both legs broken and received other internal injuries by jumping from a fifth-story window into the canvas held by the firemen, died at the central police station. Mr. Hough was a special agent of the Northwestern National fire insurance company of this city, and leaves a wife and four children. He was about 40 years of age. There was a touching scene will be presented. William E. Berlin, January 12.—Between Christmas and New Year's the note of alarm was sounded in central Europe that the head waters of the Rhine, the Main, the Danube, the Inn, the Moldau, the Vistula, the Oder, the Elbe, the Theiss and Weser were rising, owing to the melting snow in the Alps. There was also a heavy rainfall. Soon afterward the worst fears were realized. The districts bordering on these streams were inundated, and the floods which overflowed the banks laid the fields, vineyards and dwellings for miles under water, causing more destruction than the deluge of a month since. THE GEORGIA ASYLUM

Visit to the Lunatice-Sam Hill's Cell-The Unfort The Georgia Lunatic asylum!—How terribly grand the sound of its name! But what a contrast is the real to the imaginary. No imagination, however vivid can approach a description of the grandeur and magnitude of the Georgia Lunatic asylum! Not long since the heave was conferred upon us by a tour the honor was conferred upon us by a tour through' the ladies' department of this insti-tution, and we had for our chaperon Dr. Har-ris Hall, third assistant physician in charge. It would be impossible for us to narrate the items of interest that attracted our attention. Suffice to say they were various. The floors along the halls were bright as polished silver, along the halls were bright as polished silver, while the walls on either side were festooned with bright, flowers, interspersed with pictures. Passing from one apartment to another our attendant explained briefly objects of interes. We were admitted to the bath room, which we found complete. In this room the females can bathe, using at will cold or hot water. On either side of these halls, are small, bed-rooms, all of which were in perfect order. Into one of these the doctor led us and called our attention to an iron lated us and called our attention to an iron lat tice shutter hinged on the inside of the win-dow. This was to protect, or, rather, to avoid the execution of any violence that the inmate of the room might feel disposed to commit. We were also shown the late Sam Hill's quarters, on the walls of which is a scienic display, executed by that gentleman during his confinement there. We were both surprised and pleased at sight of this artistic drawing and its interest was doubly fied by an allegorical description of its affects given us by our guide Dr. Hall. This histori-cal emblem of injured innocence is sacredly preserved by the management as an interest-ing feature of the institution. Leaving here we were presented to a list of female, patients whose mental condition has been greatly in proved. Here the most perfect order prevailed, bright flowers, beautiful paintings spotless walls, &c. Almost unconsciously we were ushered into a bright lighted parlo were usnered into a bright ingular partor which was filled with beautiful young ladies. Seated at a piano a young lady played and sang most sweetly, while a short distance away stood a bagatelle table. These and like amusements are furnished without view of discalling the wind and in a degree inverse. dispelling the mind and in a degree improve the mental and physical condition of the pa-tients. In the centre of the recreation grounds adjoining the main building is erected a splendid dance stand, in the use of which many of the patients take great pleas-ure. We were also shown several of the dining rooms all of which had the appearance of perfect arrangement and tidiness throughout. It being about supper hour for the inmates our attention was called to the fare, being light bread and butter, syrup and coffee.
We were informed that light suppers were tendered, but for breakfast and dinner the diet changed to articles more substantial There are at present 979 inmates, 100 or 175 more than the institution can very well accommodate, yet the task is performed with-out neglect of attention to the least one of this long list. The new building consisting of 500 rooms, will soon be completed, which will give to the management better ficilities for a performance of their noble duties.

A Comparison of Cities

orrespondence of the Columbus Sun.
The level character of the site of Columbus The level character of the site of Columbus is now without its disadvantages, in the absence of the picturesque or varied aspect presented by the private or public buildings in cities like Macon or Atlanta, whose surface is broken. A compensation, however, is found upon looking upon the surrounding elevation in each of the adjoining states, or looking from these pleasings upon the busy. looking from these elevations upon the busy cheerful city. A city's location upon a river may or may not afford a proper drainage, owing to its elevation above the river. A stroll along the banks of the beautiful Chat tahoochee, placid under the obstruction of the great stone dam, or afterwards dashing its crested water in harmony with the music of a myriad of spindles, reveals a natural ad-vantage in the elevation of the city above the river by which drainage has been effected as complete as can be found in any other city. Atlanta suffers in this respect by comparison with your city, while the porous character of your soil absorbs any excess of rainfall which might exist despite the best drainage.

The Public Roads—The Necessity for Improvement Tragic Death of an Aged Lady—Fish Ponds, Good Farming and Child-Burning—Bui-cide at Rives—Death of a Convict.

The improvement of our county roads is a subject which the recent heavy rains has thrust into promi nence. Some years since Dr. Atticus G. Haygood in a series of letters to THE CONSTITUTION, for presented the importance of good roads from various parts of the country, making connection with the leading market centers of the state. While o much attention has been devoted to railroad derelopement, which is of benefit only in connecting the smaller trading points with the larger cities, the country roads, which is the only reliance of the isoated farmer ten miles distant, has been totally ne-Even the limited laws we have on this subject are unsatisfactory.

What is wanted is a state system of public highways, connecting all parts of he state with Atlanta, Macon, Savannah, Rome Columbus, Americus, Albany, Gainesville, Griffin Augusta, Madison and othes market centers. Such a system would work more improvement for the country at large than all the railroads ever yet built. It would not only build up the towns, but by giving the wagoner an opportunity of reaching market town and returning home on the same day, wouldbuild up a prosperous farming community. The Columbus Times ably argues the im-best possible condition that can be made consistent with the necessary cost. The railroad car is quicker, greater in capacity, and cheaper as means of transportation than the old wagons which it has superseded; and so, too, a well graded, well-drained, and, if practicable, well graveled county road will be found similarly superior to the old road in old condition, with ruts, and holes, and steep hills, requiring four horses to do the work of one—and consuming a whole day when four or five hours, on a good road, would be ample.

This is a serious question of economy, in which the interests of farmers are much more deeply involved than all farmers may suppose.

The Columbus Sun has been thrown into a study of the question of capital punishment by the nunerous Christmas murders. It has arrived at the conclusion that it is a poor argument to say that occause hanging does not put a stop to murder, therefore hanging ought to be abolished. If the death penalty has the effect to diminish the number of murders, it should be upheld; and that it does prevent crime wherever enforced, there is not the slightest doubt. We should not hear so much about the frequency of murder in this country if we heard more frequently than we do now of legal executions. Switzerland's experience in the crim years ago abolished capital punishment are one by one restoring it, having found that only the cer tainty of death is effective in controlling the mur derous impulse of the would-by manslayer.

Talbotton New Era: Mr. Mose W. Hollis, who was elected one of Talbot's county commissioners on the first Mouday in the present month, is another example of what hard work and oush will do in this grand old county. He started life a poor boy and the war left him poor, but to-day he is one of our most solid and successful planters, raising annually from eighty to one hundred bales of cotton, besides any quantity of other products. Having made such a success from a small beginning we may rest assured that the affairs of the public will be safe in his hands. He will make a good public officer, and no mistake. We are glad to record the success of all such men as Moses W. Hollis.

A Model Farm in Clarke.

From the Athens, Ga., Banner.

The other day, together with two friends, we strolled over this beautiful model farm, which is kept as neat as a pin. Mr. Meeker has recently added some fine Jerseys to his herd and will also run a stock and dairy farm. He has one of the most conveniently arranged cotton gins we ever saw. The staple passed up to the cleaner, where it is carried by hands, from thence conveyed to the gin, and drops into the press ready for packing. The seed falls into a box, from which any portion of them, or none if so desired, can either be hulled or grouned by a cotton seed will. And all this is done too without mill. And all this is done, too, without touching the cotton after it leaves the basket by which it is raised to a level with the cleaner. Mr. Meeker is doing a great deal of cus-tom work, and the lint from his gin brings one cent per pound above the market price.

She was the mother of 11 children, 6 of whom She has been a member of the Methodist church for nearly 50 years. The family, the church, the neighborhood, and many friends and acquaintances will sadly miss her. She died without a struggle or a groan—closing her eyes; and folding her hands herself. A MILLIONAIRE'S AMUSEMENTS. rom the New Haven Register.
Mr. Winans, who lost his case against J. T Mac

renzie in Edinburgh for the ejection of the crofters from the range he had bought for shooting, is a prother of Thomas Winans, who died at Newport in 1878. Both the brothers resided abroad for many years. The Baltimore Sun says that few private places in London are more splendid than that occupied by the surviving brother in Kensington palace gardens. The first carpet that was put down was a magnificent axminster, made to order, and coming hundreds of dollars, but this did not suit Mr. Winans's taste, so he ordered the second, and had it put down right over the first. It is likely that the double floor covering cost $1,000. Mr. Winans's family consists only of his wife and himself and two sons, Waiter and Louis. Mr. Whous himself cares for nothing but engineering and deer shooting, almough he spends his money lavishiy to gratify the tastes of those around him. He has a morbid dread of the ocean, and often says that he would not cross the Atlantic for $1,000,000. Mr. Winans's income in 1877 was, as nearly as he could compute it, $60,000. with a prospect of being trebled, according to his own account, within 10 years. Most of his property is in the most fashionable quarter of Loudon, where it is daily increasing in value. Having so much money to spend, it is not surprising that he endeavors to get ria of it in rather odd ways. Recently he completed another mouster "cigar ship" on the Clyde, which cost about $1,000,000. It is believed by her owner that she will be able to ross the Atlantic in five days. This is the third vessel of the same type that Mr. Winans has built. The other two are much smaller, and are well known to all who frequent the solent in the summer. It is understood that the three vessels, from first to last, have cost over$2,000,000. uble floor covering cost $5,000. Mr. Winans's

When the Winans brothers lived in Russia, during the building, by them—in company with the late Joseph Harrison, Jr., of Philadelphia—of the Moscow and St. Petersburg railway, they maintained the same elegant style that the family now does in London. Mr. Winans had an elegant box at the opera, but he was rarely to be seen there, and frequently expressed a wish to see a genuine American circus, which he insisted was very superior to the divine Patti. In the course of time a circus arrived, and the manager, hearing of, Mr. Winans's passionate fondness for the sawdust ring, attempted to bleed him so unmercifully that Mr. Winans asked him, indignatly, if he expected him to buy every description to do," replied the unabashed knight of went you to do," replied the unabashed knight of bis. indignatly, if he expected him to buy every seat at the performance. "That's just what I do want you to do." replied the unabashed knight of the sawdust. "Very well," said Mr. Winans, "I'll take every seat, but nobody exe pt myself and a friend I am going to bring shall enter, and you are to give us everything on the bill. I have bought the whole performance, and I mean to have it. True to his word, on the appointed night, Mr. Winans and a solitary friend appeared in the great theatre, and had the whole circus to themselves, applauding and encoring, and making them answer their calls whenever they chose. Mr. Winans carefully studying up the hand bill, to see that nothing was left out.

Paris Fashions for Men.

From Harper's Bazar.
A few details on men's dress may be of interest. For overcoats, frock coats, jackets and gacks the collar is short, straight, and consequently closed high. The shape is generally close-fitting, outnining the figure and of medium length. Complete suits, although less worn this winter, are still seen, especially on young men. Pointille and chine cloths, in grayish, marron, blue and dark green tints, mixed, are most used for this purpose. Frock coats are still black by preference, although they are also seen in dark shades, Havena brown, bronze, blue, black, etc.; they usually reach to the knees, and slightly outline the figure. Colored trousers are worn with them, but of soft alternated shades, with terest. For overcoats, frock coats, jackets and the figure. Colored trousers are worn with them, but of soft alternated shades, with black and dark blue parrow stripes, plain black or steel gray. The coat is buttoned high, leaving little importance to the shirt bosom, which is still further concealed by the cravat. The cuff is rather large, coming a little below the sheave and the collar is a little below the sleeves, and the collar is straight, turned down or standing. The straight opera collar is regarded as the most dressy. The vest is also buttoned high. It is dressy. The vest is also buttoned high. ATLANTA, GA., JANUARY 13, 1883

THE signal service bureau indicates for the South Atlantic states, warmer fair weather, easterly shifting to southerly winds, stationary or lower pressure.

GOVERNOR STEPHENS'S prompt and proper action in the Soule case has met with its proper result in Secretary Lincoln's order surrendering Soule. The governor "had the law on" the president, and made the best of it.

THE long continued cotton factory case has drawn to a close, unless Judge Settle's opinion is appealed from. The general public which is not interested in the details of the suit will be glad to learn that henceforth the cotton factory will be devoted to making cotton for clothing but not for suits.

A PARAGRAPH is floating around the state giving a graphic description of how Jim Dixon a pardoned convict, figured with prominence in the recent county election in Atlanta. The main trouble with the paragraph is that there is no truth in it. No man of the name has been pardoned by Governor Stephens, for any other governor.

A warning to people who have not been vaccinated is contained in an interview with Dr. Drake. Mr. Fuller went before the city council and so bitterly opposed compulsory vaccination .that the operation was; not performed on him. He and his family now have the small-pox. There could be no more forcible lesson than this incident.

Nothing has been heard lately of a new school house. Atlanta's educational facilities have done almost as much for her as her railroad facilities. Yearly large numbers of people are attracted here by the opportunity to secure a good education for their children. Such opportunities are now practically lacking merely because of the need of buildings to accommodate the scholars. The need should remedied.

OUNG GEBHART is the victim of bad advice Le cannot escape the newspaper reporters by hiring a man to write letters to the papers There are thousands of these young men in the land, and it is their trade to seek something fresh every day. An open letter is the meat upon which they feed. . If Mr. Gebbart is really desirous of avoiding notoriety in the newspapers, any experienced circus agent will tell him that a handful of imported cigars and six matinee tickets will go further than a hundred dollar bill. A young man as unsophisticated as Gebhart is a genuine newspaper sensation.

THE esteemed Philadelphia Times is beg ging the president to promptly veto the whisky bill, but, as Mr. Arthur is what the Hon. Frank Hatton would call an able and ingenious republican, it is doubtful whether he will even take into consideration the pur oses of the bill. From beginning to end it is a piece of jobbery and corruption. It is a desperate attempt to swindle the public, and the weakness of congressmen has made the attempt so successful that nothing remains but for the lobby to secure Mr. Arthur's signature, and in the very nature of things, this ought to be an easy matter.

SERGEANT BALLANTYNE, the English barris ter who came to this country awhile ago for the purpose of telling us a great many things we didn't know, has packed up his bath-tub and retired unceremoniously from our golden shores. The sergeant came among us to lecture, and managed to get as far as Cincinnati, where he broke down and gave up. He is a nice old gentleman, but terribly slow, and he never could understand the humor of the newspaper reporters. He regarded there goodnatured young men as Philistines, and he surrendered to them by shaking the dust of our lively civilization from his feet.

The MILWAUKEE's heartrending disaster has produced a shock that few similar events have made. There was so great and so unnecessary a sacrifice of life that a flush of indignation arises at the thought of how easily much of the sad result might have been avoided. Hindsight is better than foresight, but it needed not this sacrifice to enforce the necessity of putting telegraph wires under ground in large cities. It was to these lines-more murderous than the hangman's rope in such an event-that so great a loss of life took place in the Potter building fire in New York last year. The further details of the Milwaukee fire are touching and piteous and many are the lessons it enforces, espec ially upon hotel builders; and it has set nearly every leading journal asking, are our hotels safe in case of fire?

HEGE HOYT ON ILLEGAL VOTING. Illegal voting is beyond all question the pointical evil of the state. In states in which there are two powerful, closely-balanced parties it is bad enough, and in the south at the present time it is not too much to say that ballot-boxes are without proper safeguard, and almost without restraint of any kind, The only real supervisors of our elections are the candidates of the particular occasion, and the outcome is therefore not to be wondered at. Senator Hoyt suggests elsewhere in this morning's paper that a very practicable remedy can be found in a carefully-prepared registration law. Nearly every other state be granted to persons who, while they served that has grappled with the evil of illegal vot; in the army, incurred diserse and injury ing has found such a law desirable, if not after the war closed. The truth is, the indispensable. And the truth is, no man who is at once honest and intelligent will be apt swindle upon the old soldiers as well as the o object to a registration law, unless it in tax-payers of the country. ves considerable additional expense; for a mere listing of the voters is not open to any other sound objection.

The remainder of Judge Hoyt's programm s doubtless impracticable. The only cogniz ance that the law should take of the volunassemblages of the people tary should be of a police nature. The sovereigns of the state should be restrained rom breaking each other's head, but in every other respect they should be left to work out their will in their own way. A "primary," too, is a very indefinite gathering, and who shall determine what is a "primary" and what is not? The third plank of Judge Hoyt's platform is Arcadian; and, like the proposed control of the primaries, it would ome altogether superfluous, if we once had a comprehensive and stringent registration law.

TWO BILLS GONE GLIMMERING The Lowell bankruptcy bill and the Blair educational bill have lost their special advantages in the senate, and both go to the calendar, where they will probably be found at the end of the session.

The Blair bill was the special order last Wednesday. The tariff bill was to be presented at 2 o'clock, and the friends the educational bill tried to retain its special privileges until the tariff bill could be disposed of. The senate was unwilling to continue this advantage to the educational bill, which proposes to divide among the states on the basis of illiteracy an annual sum beginning at $15,000,000, and de creasing one million a year until ten annual payments shall have been made. The refusal of the senate to favor the position of the bill shows that the northern senators had decreed ts defeat, and the verdict of Wednesday may therefore be considered as final so far as this session is concerned. The republican party is unwilling to part to educate the mass of voters that it suddenly threw upon the ountry, although it is more than ready to vote away vast sums for almost any project that can be named, from pensions to subsidy schemes. The south can stand illiteracy at the ballot-box, perhaps, as well as the north can; at least, all will have to bear with its dangers and inconveniences until we have a ongress that thinks more of the general good than of special schemes and privileges and

When the educational bill had been shelved, the friends of the bankruptcy bill attempted to have it continued as unfinished business, so that it could be brought up after the tariff bill was disposed of: but this could not be gained, because unanimous consent was necessary, and Mr. Blair, who was in a pet over the defeat of his educational bill, objected. The senate seems to be disposed to favor a bankruptcy bill, but the friends of the equity bankruptcy bill are inclined to oppose the Lowell bill, preferring no legislation on the subject to the passage o the Lowell bill. The entire subject has doubtless gone to join the educational bill.

After the tariff bill is disposed of there will not be much over thirty days of the session left, and those days will be given to the appropriation bills and other bills that come up from the house.

CHILI AND THE ISTHMUS.

Chili, the little South American republic, which, backed by English interests and substantial English sympathy, has recently made a conquest of Peru, is disposed to push all its advantages to the uttermost. It has taken advantage of the extraordinary blunders in diplomacy made by the Arthur administraion, and, after compelling the American envoy and other representatives to eat a very large slice of humble pie, is now making arrangements to establish itself on the Isthmus of Panama.

This, as a matter of course, is another movement dictated by British interests, nd is no doubt made upon the strength o ndirect assurances from quarters close to the British government. The pretext for war against Colombia which Chili proposes to make, at the instance of her British backers. is the free passage of Peruvian arms permitted by that country.

Chili has already furnished Ecuador with two steamers and ten thousand rifles, and

Meanwhile Chili is pressing her own claims for the damages against the Isthmian government with a heat and vigor which, taken in connection with the rejection of a proprosed arbitration and the threat of the Chilian newspapers, look very much like war. While this is going on, the diplomats, so called, who misrepresent the United States simply because they represent the folly of a republi can administration, are trotting around from snub to insult with mediation devisements fresh from Mr. Whatshishuysen's trundie bed.

There is no doubt that Chili is fully prepared for the enterprise, and there is still less. doubt that her own desires are fed by British advice. She has a navy equal to the emergency, an army larger than she needs in Peru. and the prospect is tempting. We desire to predict now that the project will have the moral (or immoral) aid and support of the British organs in this country which applauded the belittling of the influence of the Unit ed States in the Peruvian matter, and that it will have the official sanction of the influential British attorneys who draw salaries in the state department.

PENSION FRAUDS.

A correspondent of the Milwaukee Senti. nel, who says that he lives in a rural community of not exceeding one thousand inhabitants, calls attention to some new features of the pension swindle. He declares that the liberality of the government in the matter of pensions is shamefully abused, and he thinks there is something wrong in either the vigilance of the officials or the laws and rules governing the evidence. Within the boundaries of the correspondent's community there are at least half a dozen cases where pensions have been awarded to persons who would be found not entitled to them were any kind of invesigation to take place. Other cases from the same community are now in course of examination by the pension office where it is expected pensions will whole pension business is a fraud. It is a pension agents and their confederates. The ension list should be printed in order that every community in the country might be able to point out the frauds upon it. In this only can the swindle be partially mitigated and the vast fund directed into the appropriate channels.

Apart from this there may be frauds in the pension office; but this is an evil that cannot be cured until the democratic civil service reform movement places honest men in office

COTTON TIES AGAIN.

Why should the tax upon cotton ties be inreased from 36 per cent ad valorem to 81 per ent? The increase in the tax will amount to about $500,000 a year. Now, on what ground, in the name of common sense, can this additional sum be wrested from the southern farmers to build up and make more profitable the business of six men, or perhaps six mills, in the eastern states? It certainly cannot be on the ground that the producers of cotton are becoming bloated with wealth. It can not well be on the ground that a margin of thirty-six per cent and transportation charges is not a reasonable basis of profit in the home production of ties. If the six eastern mills cannot make ties at a profit under such advantages, it is time to inquire whether the struggling planting interest does not need help as much as the six mills in the eastern states. It is "the six" against the cot ton growers of sixteen states. The "six" are ahead as things stand. The tariff commission and the senate finance committee indorse the demand of the six mills and dismiss the remonstrances of the great agricultural interest against further plundering. The six mills demand that a tax of 81 per cent ad valorem shall be ;levied upon every man who buys cotton ties-an increase of 100 per cent on this duty-and our farmers are powerless unless their represent atives, first in the senate, and then in the house, can defeat this demand of the merciless eastern mills.

INDUSTRIAL SCHOOLS.

The Savannah News favors a system of industrial schools, rather than one school attached to the state university. It thinks, in other words, that a school not over ambitious in each city of the state, would be more useful than a high grade polytechnic department of the university. It cites the branches of the agricultural department of that institution, which "have not even risen dignity of a farce." the News goes on to would," say, "be unfortunate if the polytechnic school, se much needed to supply our machine and other works throughout the state with skilled aborers, should fall into the same line of acion without regard to the object for which it was designed." Our Savannah contem porary thinks that "If a system is entered ipon, such schools may properly be located in different sections, as they really should be in a great state of such rapid growth and variety of industries, in order to cover all conveniences of population and appropriate all the advantages offered by the state to the peculiarities of the institution."

ATLANTA, Ga., January 8, 1883-Hon. S. B. Hoyt -Dear Sir: As there is considerable discussion go ing on about illegal voting, registration, &c., we would like to have your views on the subject.

Yours respectfully, JAMES A. WATSON DUNN, JOHNSON & CO., W. M. LOWRY, P. L. MYNATT, A. C. WYLY, Pr. H. BELL.

ATLANTA, GA., January 11th, 1883 .- Messrs, Jas ATLANTA, GA., January 11th, 1883.—Messrs, Jas. A. Watson, Dunn, Johnson & Ce., W. M. Lowry, A. C. Wyly, P. L. Mynatt and P. H. Bell—Gentlemen: Your note, 8th inst., is before me. In all governmens by the people and for the people, the question of how to obtain an expression of the popular will, by pure and fair methods, is the hardest problem which law-makers have to solve. It is no new question, either. For four or five centuries, the Anglo-Saxon race has worked upon it, and has not solved it yet. English kings and cabinets have, for many centuries, resorted to all sorts of corrupt practices, to control popular elections; and candidates there have, for many years, spent, and do now spend, incredible sums to secure their election.

ours is not the only age and time in which co ot methods have prevailed. Human nature wa apt methods have prevailed. Human nature was uman nature in the "good old times." we hear so nuch about, as it is now. We will not find an creadia short of the millenium. As long as self. Areadia short of the millenium. As long as sellove is the mainspring of human action, candidates will fight to win, and will "stoop to conquer" by doing things which their own consciences disapprove of, and which they are ever after ashamed of, But it is a great error to suppose that candidates. doing things which their own consciences disapprove of, and which they are ever after ashamed of.
But it is a great error to suppose that candidates are not as unutterably disgusted at the corrupt practices at elections, of which all lovers of law and order so justly complain, as the voters. When eels enjoy being skinned candidates will enjoy being fleeced. A reform will benefit them as much as anybody else, while, therefore, everybody desires a reform, any proposed remedy, from the nature of the case, must be imperfect. All we can do is to try to devise the best remedy we can. The remedy I suggest is as follows:

1. A general registration law for the whole state. The arguments in favor of this law are too numerous to be set forth here. Such a bill was introduced by me in the senate.

ous to be set forth here.

Such a bill was introduced by me in the senate and will be disposed of at the adjourned session and will be disposed of at the adjourned session in July.

2. A general law regulating primary elections of the political parties. Let this law simply prescribe penalties for illegal voting or repeatings at these elections, leaving it to the political parties to decide what class of voters shall vote, but prohibiting any person from voting who is not a legal voter. Several years ago, my old friend, Judge Collier, suggested to me such a law. With all my admiration of the good, sound sense and judgement of the judge, I did not then think it was practicable But further reflection has led me to believe that such a law is not only practicable, but would be of vast benefit to the state. It would prevent the many barefaced frauds now perpetrated at primaries, and enable us to return to nominations, because we could rely on a fair election. I am conries, and enable us to return to mominations, be-eause we could rely on a fair cleetion. I am con-firmed in this belief, by finding among the New York statutes a law of this kind. I am now draft-ing a bill of this sort. If the two acts above de-scribed cannot be passed as general state laws, then I favor local acts of the same sort for Fulton county.

3. As auxiliary to the foregoing I suggest the formation of associations composed of such voters as will sign a piedge that they will not vote for any candidate who will not file with the association an affidavit that he will not spend one cent, either himself or through his supporters, or any other way on account of the election, unless it be for such expenses as may be approved of by a committee of the association, appointed for that purpose. These are my views. Something must be done to remedy the great evil now existing. Can any better scheme be proposed than the foregoing? "I pause for a reply."

AN OLD OFFICE SEEKER. EDITORS CONSTITUTION: Marietta, January 12-A story was told of Lewis Cas

nd an old friend of his earlier years, by General Wetmore, of New York, than whom few then living understood the ins and outs of Washington life and the crooked ways of politics better or enoyed more keenly a good story. It has occurred to me that the "point" might be

Lewis Cass, on arriving at the department of state (he was then secretary), found on his desk the card of a gentlman from his native state. The door keeper was told to show him in, which he did. A blunt old farmer grasped the secretary's hand with a "Weil, Lew. I'm mighay glad to ace you, but mebbe you don't remember me." Of course the secretary received him cordisily—he was a constituent he looked him over carefully—couldn't recall nim, and was compelled to say, "Weil, no, sir; you have the alvantage of me." Then the farmer gave his name and Cass remembered the comrade of his youth, through sil the changes forty years had made. The secretary was profuse in expressions of pleasure at seeing his old friend again, and all that, and finally said:
"Well, now Joe, what brought you down here? I am curious to know. Is there anything I can do for you? You know I would do anything in the world for you, it my power."
"There, now! Lew? That's just what I told 'em. I said, I knew hee when he was a youngster, and I knew he wouldn't change like that."
Cass—"Well, now Joe, what is it? How can I help you? Just say it; if it is in my power, I will do it for you most willingly: you know there's nothing in the world that I wouldn't do for you. Now what is it?"
Farmer—"Well, I don't know just what it is, but in the world that I wouldn't dolor you. Now what it is it?"

Farmer—"Well, I don't know just what it is, but I thought you might get me, a 'sinum-curem' I believe they call it, any way its where there's plenty pay and not much to do. You see Lew, I ain't able to do much now, and I wouldn't-a-come down any way, if things hadn't gone so powerful badbut I won't bother you about that I jest knew you'd put me thro', if you knew my fix. You see I ain't partik'lar, only something."

Cass—"My dear old friend, you know I would do anything in the world I could for you, but you see, I'm afraid I could not explain it to you, you cannot understand how many persons there are trying to get an office, and how fewget any. You see you would ould not expand and how many persons there are trying to general and how few get any. You see you would tunderstand it. I do not see any thing just tunderstand it. I do not see any you. Just call understand it I do not see any thing jus, but Joe, I'll keep my eye on you. Just call whenever you can; I shall be pretty busy now, a while."

The farmer called the next morning. The sec-retary was 'very much engaged,' but in a hurried manner said:

I'm on the lookout. I'll keep my eye on you.

"I'm on the lookout. I'll keep my eye on you."

It is unnecessary to lengthen the story. Day after day the answer was the same in effect—"Looking out for him;" "anything in the world he could do" and "keeping his eye on him."

Ten days passed in this way, the old rustic has seen Washington. His patience was used up and he had only money enough left to get home with: he would see Lew once more.

Joe called, he was shown if with the same promptness as ever. The secretary "was very busy" but the old farmer was not to be put off this time. "Now Lew; just listen a minit, You've told me again and again, if there was anything you could do, 'you'd do it. I have sound something you can do for me. I know you can, and that's all I want now."

The Secretary—"My dear old friend, I am so glad.

and that's all I want now."

The Secretary—"My dear old friend, I am so glad.
Just tell me. You know I would do anything in my power to help you. You can not know how

Office Seeker—"Yes! yes!? I know I've money

WHAT ONE MAN HAS DONE. On the 18th of July, 1881, just one year and a half ago, Dr. N. A. Pratt broke ground for a factory in

He had bought 85 acres of land-organized a com pany-and was ready for work. The factory was to be built to make sulphuric acid out of the iron pyrites that lie scattered by the thousand tons over Georgia hills. Heretofore we had imported sulphur from Italy and elsewhere and distilled our sulphuric acid from that. Dr. Pratt proposed to utilize Georgia rocks, and held that they would yield sulphuric acid cheaper than it could be reduced from sulphur. His theory has been proved true. The company principally of Cincinnati capitalists, put $350,000 in the enterprise and has been richly repaid. Where one factory was started eighteen months ago five factories now stand: the chemical works and two fertilizer works, a cotton seed oil mill and copper reduction works, representing $900,000 of capital, of which half has been spent in plants and erty, all on the 85 acres bought by Dr. Pratt. New enterprises are contemplated and those already up will be enlarged.

This utilizing of boulders, that Georgians have stumped their toes against for a century, has proved so rich an investment, that Dr. Pratt has since put up extensive works in Nashville for reducing pyri es, and is now going to build even larger works in Alabama, when he will return and build new ones In addition to this Dr. Pratt is the man who discovered the phosphate beds in South Carolina, and pointed out the countless wealth buried there. He got up the company that bought thirty square miles of the phosphate beds, which are estimated to contain 2,000 tons to the acre. After getting out of this he built in Charleston the first chemical works ever built in the south, and now there are eight other works to keep it company. The phosphate business has grown to be enormous.

Who has been a better pioneer in this intelligent development than Dr. Pratt? What brain has done nore for the south than this modest but brilliant scholar whose whole aim seems to be to build, and once being built, to seek new work. No better armade for a practical school than t summerize, as we have done, the work of what one man of practical education has been able to do.

QUAILS FIVE AND SIX

Mr. Walcott's Time 12 Minutes on the Third Day From the New York Sun. The first thing a man sees on entering Gabe Case reads:

M. James Moffatt bets Mr. Gabe Case the sum of $350 against the like sum that he will produce a gentleman that will eat two qualis a day between the hours of 4 and 5 o'clock p. m., each day, for thirty consecutive days, at Case's hotel on Jerome avenue, commencing Sun.lay, January 7th, 1883.

At 4:40 o'clock yesterday afternoon time was called for the attack on quali five and quali six and Mr. Walcott, the champion, was escorted to the scores-ready for the work. On the table were two broiled qualis on toast, bread and butter, some pineapple cheese and three reasted potatoes. To the ordinary observer it looked like a small lunch. After expeditiously devouring the qualis and the other eatables, Mr. Walcott washed them down with half a wine glassful of gastrine. It was then 4:32. His time was twelve minutes. It was odd to see a crewd of men standing around the table and watching every morsel disappear. Gabe Case's colored caterer, Merchant Williams, stood looking on with his mouth wide open, following with his jaws the motions of Walcott's. A general laugh greeted the discovery of this picturesue effect, and Williams said: "I wouldn't like to supply that gentleman with all the quali he could eat."

"I have got to scour the market for qualis." Gabe Case said. "It seems to be a perfect mania with my customers to call for quali now. I hope nobody will be so inconsiderate as to corner the quali market till this is over."

"Walcott don't eat a whole quali?" objected a bystander. "Where's the head?"

This was discussed, but it was the general agreement that the conventional broiled quali, commonly described as "quall on toast," is the quali of the

SECURING ADVICE.

A prominent Detroiter who has the reputation of knowing all about horses, was coming down Woodward avenue the other day when a stranger halted him, inquired if he was Mr. So and so, and added: "I have walked seven miles this morning to se ure your advice. Will you go to the harness shop with me?"

The citizen turned back and walked three blocks to the shop. The strauger then showed him two norse brushes, and said: "This brush is twenty cents and that one two question?"

"Oh, no. I had already about made up my mind to get a brush with a landscape painted on the back. Now about currycombs. The object of a currycomb is to agitate a horse, I suppose, but what particular style do you advise? Here are both red and blue handled currycombs, and I will be guided by what "Did you ever own a horse?" asked the citizen.

"Mercy, no!"

"Do you own one now?"

Then what in flaxation do you want of those "Then what in flaxation do you want of those things?"

"Well, that's another matter on which I wanted your valuable advice. Isn't it better to buy a brush and currybomb in the winter and then buy a horse in the spring, or would you buy all at once?"

"You'd better buy a saw-horse!" remarked the indignant citizen as he walked off.

"Just see that!" gasped the man who had walked seven miles. "Why, I was intending after we got through to ask him to take a glass of beer, and he walks off as if he took me for a dead-beat! What other man in Detroit knows all about horses?"

From the Pall Mall Gazette. Two gypsies named William Dee and Ada Boswell were married in Bunbury parish church, Cheshire esterday. The bride was attended by a brides maid, and the bridegroom by his brother. The bride was attired, according to gypsy custom, in a bride was attired, according to gypsy custom, in a dark green dress with white lace, apron and cap, and she also wore a wreath of gold leaves. The bridesmaid was dressed in a peacock blue velve-teen dress, with white cap adorned with pink chrysanthemums. The service was peformed by the Rev. William Lowe, vicar. Afterward, by the invitation of Mr. and Mrs. Garnett, of Haughton Hall, who accompanied the parties to the service, the bride and bridegroom, together with a number of gypsy friends and companions, returned to Haughton Hall, where breakfast was served in a gypsy tent on the lawn. Toasts were proposed in the Romany dialect, and the health of the giver of the feast was enthusiastically drunk.

An English Opinion of American Sport From the London Referes

"In sporting matters the Americans are like so many children. They are to be led anywhere and made to believe anything. Sparring exhibitions, foot and boat races, and other and similar shows which would not in England attract a score of specwhich would not in England attract a score of spectators, become in America topics of the day, and most remunerative to their proprietors. However pleasant it may be to know that the American public takes so great an interest in sporting affairs, the knowledge has its rebate. The readiness of the yanks to swallow anything that is offered them leads to all sorts of swindles and barneys. Some of these are of the most barefaced kind, and would not be possible in this calm and collected and cold and conservative country. One or two newspaper proprietors in New York are making a pretty penny out of the boxing excitement; they will pull the strings and make the purpots dance as long as the work produces any profit."

With a dreary sound of woe,
And it seems to be wailing a funeral dirge
For the dead who ke under the snow.
Wailing and crying.
Mosning and sighing,
Sobbing and dying.
With a voice of unuiterable woe.

The snowflakes have fallen the whole day long.
Si ently falling and slow.
And they seem to be weaving a winding sheet
For the dead who lie under the snow.
Sifting and drifting.
Scattering and rifting.
Snow-mounds uplifting.
O'er the dead who lie buried below.

The darkness wraps earth with a sable robe,
Though the stars are above it, I know:
And night seems to fashion a funeral pall
For the dead who lie under the snow
Quietly sleeping.

CURED BY FAITH,

A Young Man Helpless from Rheumatism Restored to Health.

HUNTINGTON, Pa., January 12 .- Since Thursday last the people of this county have been in a state of wonder and surprise over a re-markable faith cure effected on that evening near Petersburg, on the Pennsylvania rail-road, six miles west of this city. A young man, John R. Neff, had been for fourteen years so afflicted with rheumatism as to be utterly helpless and unable to walk, or even rise from a chair, without assistance. Every remedy that could be suggested for relief or that human skill could furnish was tried, but without success. Medical treatment and visits to Florida and the Magnetic springs of Michigan were unavailing. Through a Mrs. Miller, of Illinois, who formerly resided in this county, and who recently recovered from a chronic disease through a faith cure, the invalid's mother was put into communication with Mrs. Judd. of Buffalo, N. Y., who fixed Thursday evening as a time for prayer for young Neff and 8 o'clock as the hour for relief to come, provided he would exercise the necessary faith.

At his invitation a number of neighbors

At his invitation a number of heighbors and relatives of the family were gathered at the home on the appointed evening to witness the expected miracle and joined with him in singing and prayer. A few minutes before eight he announced with the utmost confidence that he would walk, and when the clock struck the hour he arose from his chair and demonstrated the truth of his assertion. and demonstrated the truth of his assertion He passed around the room as he had not done in many years, shaking hands with all present and receiving their congratulations. He then went to another room, into which he descended by steps and exhibited a wonderful return of power. He has continued to grow in strength and to walk freely, experiencing no inconvenience, except some soreness in the joints which were long unused. His crutches have not since been in his hands, and he declares that he will never need they and he declares that he will never need them

Thigpen, the Man Who is Charged With the Forgery of the Will, Put on the Stand and Denies His Former Confessions-Mr. Hoke Smith Be-gins the Argumen, in the Case.

The trial of the Broad will case was resumed in the superior court yesterday at two o'clock, before Judge Hammond, Mr. Rucker, the sick juror, on account of whose illness the case was postponed, was not able to attend, but by consent of all parties, the case went on with eleven jurymen. some unimportant affidavits, but the first testimony of interest was that of Mr. Bose Adair. He testified that he knew John Broad when he was alive. Mr. Smith asked him if he had ever had any conversation with Broad in reference to the buildings at the corner of Broad and Hunter-streets. He replied:

"Yes. In 1879, I believe, I wanted to buy that corner for some other parties, and he wanted to sell me the property next door to 92 Whitehall street. I told him that I did not want that."

'Yes, about eight months before he died he

Colonel Hoge objected to the witness being allowed to testify to what Broad said. Mr. Smith stated that he expected to prove that Broad declined to sell because he had willed the property to Fred Cummings. Judge Hammond ruled the evidence out, and the Hammond ruled the evidence out, and the witness was not permitted to testify further.

Mr. P. J. Kenny was put upon the stand to testify to the general good character of J. B. Scarratt, one of the witnesses to the signing of the will. Colonel Hoge objected, on the ground that no attempt had been made to imposely Scarratt. The objection was sustained.

"Have you read it all now?" "I want you to be able to testify whether or not that is the statement you made on that day, and to whom you delivered it. Read it all." wrote a statement about this length,

"I wrote a statement about this length, and the gentleman that I made it for said he didn't want it, and he re-wrote it, and he may have written it differently."

The proceedings lulled and in the interim the old man's eyes closed, his head began to droop, his knees grew shakey, and—
"Catch him!" remarked some one in an analysteen.

Mr. Thigpen!" said Col. Hoge, "wake up."
The witness opened his eyes with a start was on the doze again.

"How many papers did you write at the same time and place that you wrote that? Did you write more than one statement?"

"Yes. I wrote a statement?"

"Yes. I wrote a statement about a feel and the Western Union telegraph office. But little of the goods or feesiless of the goods of Yes. I wrote a statement about as full as this and tried to fix it so as to suit my friend Mr. Hi!l but he said it didn't start right and made me start it differently." "You only wrote the one statement?"

"Yes, I wrote the one and he wrote this,

"I don't know, sir."
"Mr. Thigpen, I want to ask you whether, mr. Inispen, I want to say you whether, in the presence of Mr. Alexander C. King, Mr. Rufus T. Dorsey, Mr. I. E. Hill and myself, on the day that this appears to have been written, the 26th of May, 1882, and in my office on Whitehall street, you did not read this statement and deliver it to me as the truth as to the execution of the Broad will?"

"I have no recollection."
"Do you say you did or you did not?"
Te witness hemmed and hawed in a sleepy sort of way for a while, denying the truth of his confessions and attempting to explain how they came to be made. Colonel Hoge asked:

During the greater part of the morning the market was exceedingly dull, but a strong a strong advance of 1/4 to 11/4 per cent took place, in which New Jersey Central, Denver and Rio Grande, Boston Air Line preferred, Omaha preferred, and the Wabashes were most prominent. About noon the list receded 1/4 to 1/4 per cent, but subsequently most of this was recovered, Wabash leading in both instances. The market after this, still contining very dull, became weak, and shortly before the close there was a decline of 1/2 to 1 per cent in the general list, the latter for Wabash, while Memphis and Charleston dropped to 48% from 51% at noon, Richmond and Danville to 491/4 from 52, and Northwest preferred sold at 148%, 146%, 147%, 147, 148, its closing price. In the final dealings there was a general rally of 1/4 to % per cent, and the market closed firm at an adon the day's transactions of 1/4 to 11/4 per cent, the latter for Hannibal and St. Joseph preferred. PARIS, January 12-4:30 p. m.-Rentes 79f. 70c. THE COTTON MARKET

CONSTITUTION OFFICE, Atlanta, January 12, 18:3 New York—While there was no decided animation in the cotton market this week, and the feeling has made no particular demonstration in either direction, still the general appearance of the market ems somewhat improved, and the outlook rather favors better prices. Net receipts have fallen off very considerably as compared to the aggregates of some weeks back, still figures keep a long distance shead of last season, and the dropping off may be regarded as only temporary. Exports, while less than last week, are heavy, and the movement of cotton east shows a great emptiness there. Spots have advanced 1-16c, and during the past day or two a very good inquiry was reported. At the close to-day middling ruled steady at 10 3-16c.

Not receipts for the week ending te-day 172,202 bales, against 214,735 bales last week and against 104,024 bales for the corresponding week last year; exports for the week 161,633 bales; same time last year 134,312 bales; stock 936,687 bales; same time las

The local cotton market was very quiet during the early part of the week, but within the past day or two there sprung a good inquiry, which increased into considerable activity to-day. Receipts, owing to the unpropitious weather, have been light, and but little activity is noticed in this on. At the close to day the feeling showed considerable strength but no advance was reported. By some it was said to resemble a hyena, while others claim that it was a veritable tiger. There were stories of dead hogs and frightened children in all sections of the suburd, and when dark came the streets were quiet and deserted. Night before last a colored woman who was carrying home a basket of clothes, was attacked by the beast and forced to drop her basket in order to make her escape. The story of this adventure flew fast and grew in size as if fed. Yesierday the matter was discussed on the streets in this city, and in a short while a party was organized to hunt down the beast which has robbed a delightful suburb of its peace and quiet. Headed by Sheriff Perkerson, who is always ready to protect the citizens of Fulton county from dangers seem and unseen, the party, consisting of Mr. John Berkele Mr. Sam Venable, Mr. R. H. Knapp and a few others left the city for West End shout 2 o'clock in the afternoon. They were all well armed with repeating rides, and were accompanied by a brace of dogs and were anxious to encounter the beast. Finding the point at which the wild beast was last seen, they put their dogs upon the trail, and although several hours were spent in the hunt, only the tracks of the brute were found.

That there is a strange looking beast roaming through that section of the country there can be no doubt. As was stated in these columns a few days since it has been seen by reliable persons whose word is unimpeachable. Last fall when sell's circus was in Atlanta a hyena was reported to have escaped from its eage and there are those who claim that the brute which has raised the present excitement in West End is that hyens.

SOULE WILL COME BACK.

The Young Musician's Scheme to Escape the Law by Joining the Army a Fallure

The readers of THE CONSTITUTION will remember how Jules Soule, the leader of the Musical Union band, made his second departure from Atlanta several weeks ago to escape trial for alleged violations of the law, and how the young man joined the army at St. Augustine and defied the civil authorities. Governor Stephens did not submit quietly to such a proceeding, and by correspondence with the president, has succeeded in demolishing Soule's plan for escaping trial. The following correspondence covers and explains the case, and an officer ence covers and explains the case, and an officer will be started at once to bring the fugitive back:

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT, Setate of Georgia, Atlanta, Ga., December 28th, 1832.—To His Excellency Chester A. Arthur, President: I herewith inclose copies of papers which may be relied upon as correct, and to which I ask your excellency's careful attention, and such action as you may deem proper in the premises. From the papers submitted it appears that heretofore to-wit: On the 16th day of December, 1832, an executive requisition was issued from this office, in pursuance of the act of congress of 1793, upon the governor of Florida, for the arrest and return of one Jules Soule, a fugitive from the justice of this state, charged on affidavit with the crime of larceny after trust reposed. The affidavit was in proper form, and Captain E. F. Couch was the duly appointed agent of this state to bear the requisition to the governor of Florids, and receive said fugitive from the authorities of that state. It further appears that the governor of Florida promptly compiled with said requisition, and issued his warrant for the arrest and rendition of the party accused. Jules Soule it was ascertained was in St. Augustine, Florida, and the warrant was placed in the hands of the sheriff of St. Johns county, which embraces the city of St. Augustine. But when the sheriff attempted to make the arrest he was prevented from so doing by the commanding officer of the milliary post in said city, upon the sole ground that Soule was an enlisted man in the United States forces under his command, and that he would not recognize the authority of either Florida or Georgia in delivering up Soule under the papers presented All of which clearly appears from the enclosed copies. will be started at once to bring the fugitive back:

Circuit Court Yesterday.

Judge Settle opened the circuit court promptly at ten o'clock yesterday morning, and the cotton factory case was resumed. Mr. Hoke Smith continued his argument sustaining the receiver's certificates as a charge on the proceeds of sale prior to the bonds. He was followed by Captain Jackson in a forcible exhibit of the authorities and the equities, calling on the court to sustain the acts one by its authority, and under its direction. Colonel Mynatt then submitted some authorities and suggestions in addition to his argument of the day previous, when Judge Bleckley opened the concluding argument in the case. Judge Bleckley admitted that all the acts of the receiver were in pursuance of the authority granted and orders issued to him by the court, but contended that all indebedness chargeable to the receivership must look only to the fund in the receiver's hands from net earnings and had no claim on the proceeds of the recent sale of the property. Judge Settle gave the most intelligent and close attention to the nany counsellors who argued before him, and by his remarks evinced his familiarity with the law and the points presented, yet gave no intimation of his conclusions. At one o'clock the argument of his conclusions. At one o'clock the argument being closed the judge announced that he would take a recess of court until 4 p. m., at which hour he would deliver his opinion.

Buring the proceedings on Thursday, Mr. Julius Brown, representing Judge Wm. B. Woods, of the supreme court at Washington, asked for an order making Judge Woods a party to the proceedings, he being a bondholder. This motion was grauted. Mr. Brown then moved that the decree of sale be amended by driking out the authority of the 10th section permitting the trustees to become bidders in their individual capacity. This motion was denied.

in their individual capacity. This motion was delifed.

On the reassembling of court at 4 p, m,
Judge Settle delivered a very concise but comprehensive opinion, fully sustaining all the acts and accounts of Ex-Governor Bullock, the receiver.
The judge spoke without notes. He premised by stating that the very able argument of the distinguished counsel representing the trustees, asking that the fund derived from the sale of the property should be held separate and not be made chargeable with the accounts of the receiver would ordinarily prevail, but this case should be considered as being joined and one from the original order of court taking possession of the property and appointing a receiver at the instance of the first morigage bondlolders through the two sales and the amended decree making the trustees parties and down to the present time. It was of record and not controverted that the receiver had regularly reported his proceedings to the court, without objection from any party, hadvought and received the order of the court authorising him to issue negotiable paper.

Dr. McNair, ot New York,

Br. McNair, et New York,

Has prolonged his stay in Akron, giving all who have had no chance to callon him an opportunity to do so. Doctor McNair esme among us about a month ago: during that time he has and is treating some of our best citizens. They all join in high praise of his wonderful magnetic powers. Scores of those who have been doctored for years and given up as incurable by many other physicians have received great benefit in an incredibly short space of time. So much so that in many cases it has seemed almost beyond belief. While many have cried humbug, many have sought aid from the doctor's wonderful gift of healing with the most gratifying results. All Doctor McNair asks is a fair investigation of his theory and systemiof practice before condemning it. Doctor McNair is the only thoroughly educated pattles who visit him for the purpose of enlightenment that he is fully posted in truths of Materia Medica, and uses his magnetic power in accordance with the most advanced rules which the science of medicine dictates, and those who are disposed to decide until they succeed in themonstrating that his system is a false one, should keep eilent. In all ages waere bigotry and superstition were rank ignorance and intollerance have been the crowning vices.

The above is from the Okron, O. News. The doctor remains for six weeks at 120 Whitehall street. He treats successfully all kinds of chronic diseases. None suffering should fail to call on him. Consulting the consulting from the order of the miner of the product of the prod

Mr. J. R. Tolleson has gone to Atianta, to go into business. We regret that Spartanburg has to lose a young man of so much energy and business tact, but we hope and believe that the move will result well for him. He began business here when only 18 years of age. Being a minor, he had some difficulty at first in his business and banking transactions but he was so prompt in his payment of all demsnds and met every obligation in such a business like way, that persons forgot that he was a minor. Mr. Cofield, the president of the bank, informs us that he has met every claim promptly and cheerfully, and that he stands first-class as a business man. During these years he has haid by something for a rainy day. The secret of his success has been close-attention to his own business. LOVE LAUGHS AT LOCKSMITHS The Father Objects But the Young Lady Consent and the Preacher is Called In.

In this city, at 97 East Mitchell street, a roman-tic wedding took place yesterday morning. The bride was Miss Nannie Thatcher, one of the belles of Chattanooga, and the groom was a young gen tleman well known and highly esteemed in At lants.

About one year ago Mr. Jno. B: Glass, the groem, and Miss Thatcher were about to be married at the home of the bride's parents in Chattanooga, but the lady's father objected and the engagement was anulled. A few weeks ago however Mr. Glass and Miss Thatcher opened a correspondence, which yesterday terminated in their marriage. Knowing that a wedding in Chattanooga would be impossible. Miss Thatcher agreed to come to Atlanta. Mr. E. W. Beall, one of the handsomest conductors on the Western and Atlantic railroad, was a friend to both parties and assisted the lady in leaving her home, and in boarding the train which brought her to Atlanta early yesterday morning. Immediately after reaching the city Miss Thatcher was excorted to 97 East Mitchell sireet, where she was married yesterday morning at seven o'clock in the presence of a large number of newly made friends.

The bride is the daughter of a commission merchant in Chattanooga, and was a reigning society belle in that city.

New East Lynne.

There has been an entertainment of some kind every night this week of some character at the opera house, this, in connection with the unusual severe weather, has been rather a tax upon our amusement leving people, still there was a fair sized audience at the opera house last night to witness the production of the "New East Lynne," by the Chanfrau combination. "The Lady Isabel" of Mrs. Chanfrau was a chaste and delicate conception of the role and intelligently played; yet not so effectively as we have seen "Lady Isabel" simulated by others. The facial expression, the Intensity of action and utterance at the loss of her child while in the role of "Madame Vine," was perhaps the triumph of Mrs. Chanfrau during the rendition of the play. This afterneous at matinee the company play "London Assurance." Mrs. Chanfrau takes the part of "Lady Gay Spanker." By nature and appearance she suggests good humor and fine spirits; this suits her talents rather than the heavy emotional and tearful roles of "East Lynne," and all who attend the matinee will see a good exponent of "Lady Gay" in the dash, coquetty and talent of Mrs. Chanfrau.

To night the engagement closes with "Kit, the Arkansaw Traveler," "Kit' is the favorite role of Mr. Chanfrau, he has made a national reputation in it, and will doubtless be greeted by a full house. severe weather, has been rather a tax upon our
